Toronto, Ontario, October 18, 2007 - YAMANA GOLD INC. (TSX: YRI; NYSE: AUY; LSE: YAU) today announced the completion of the initial and most important phase of its transition and integration plan relating to the combination of Yamana, Meridian Gold and Northern Orion and the strategic plan of the combined company moving forward.

Appointments of Management and Board of Directors

The following is a summary of the management appointments and integration implemented to date.

Appointment and promotion of new senior vice president and vice president positions forming the core of the executive management team whose members come from the São Paulo, Reno and Toronto offices:

Appointment of Darrin Rohr as Vice President, Human Resources.

Retention of the entire exploration and operations groups at all companies from the Reno and South America offices;

Retention of most of the accounting group at Meridian's Reno office; and Retention of all general managers and senior managers at the Company's seven mines.

Senior executive management will continue to be headed by Peter Marrone as Chairman and Chief Executive Officer and Antenor Silva as President and Chief Operating Officer. The senior management team also includes Jacqueline Jones as Vice President, Legal and General Counsel and Assistant Corporate Secretary and Jodi Peake as Vice President, Public and Investor Relations.

The integration combines and complements the core competencies and skill sets of various groups in the respective companies. In particular, it recognizes:

The significant exploration expertise and intellectual property from Meridian complemented by the equally significant construction and development expertise from Yamana;

Contribution of operational depth from both companies;

Corporate and management strength from Yamana; and

Accounting strength from both companies

This brings together all the best practices and personnel in the various disciplines of company management.

Yamana is entering the next phase of growth — one that is full of potential represented by the addition of resources and talent from both Meridian and Northern Orion. To fully realize that potential, we have moved quickly to build the executive team for the new company, said Peter Marrone, chairman and chief executive officer of Yamana. In every respect, Yamana has never been stronger and with this team, we fully expect to achieve progressively higher levels of strategic and operational excellence. There is similarity in culture and approach and a great mix of talents. The team has now undertaken a process of determining the value added we intend to provide for all of our mines and properties.

Yamana has also appointed from the Meridian Board of Directors Robert A. Horn, Richard P. Graff and Carl L. Renzoni to its Board of Directors effective October 16, 2007. These appointments supplement Yamana's existing board. The total board is now comprised of ten board members.

Mr. Horn previously served as Vice President, Exploration for Inco Limited, FMC Gold Company and BP Canada. He has been on Meridian's board since 2004 and is a member of the compensation committee.

Mr. Graff is a retired partner from Pricewaterhouse Coopers LLP where he served as the audit leader in the United States for the mining industry. Mr. Graff has been on Meridian's board since 2005 and is the chairman of the audit committee and serves on the corporate governance committee. Mr. Graff will also join the Company's audit committee.

Mr. Renzoni retired from BMO Nesbitt Burns in 2001 where he was employed since 1969 and most recently served as a managing director. Mr. Renzoni has been on Meridian's board since 2000 and serves as the chairman of the corporate governance committee.

With their impressive public sector credentials and industry knowledge, Mr. Horn, Mr. Graff and Mr. Renzoni represent a strong addition to the expertise of our existing board, said Peter Marrone, chairman and chief executive officer of Yamana. We look forward to benefiting from their collective experience, added Mr. Marrone.

Strategic Plan

Yamana's strategic plan is focused on organic growth initially targeting production of 1.2 million ounces of gold in 2008 and progressively increasing to a sustainable level of 2.2 million ounces of gold in 2012. Production at these levels will be driven from enhancements, expansions, improvements and development of existing assets. Exploration successes from the Company's impressive and robust exploration portfolio will support and supplement these levels.

Specific aspects of the strategic plan include the following:

Sustainability of production;

Low cost production both before, and particularly after, by-product credits;

Focus on growth in resources, production, cash flow and earnings;

Organic resource and production growth from development of existing projects and further exploration efforts from one of the most impressive portfolios of exploration concessions in the Americas;

Focus on locations friendly to industry, and mining in particular, with mining pedigree, culture and history;

Focus on areas with developed infrastructure;

Focus on programs with manageable and modest capital costs;

Results driven approach to exploration, development, construction and operations;

Ensuring priority is given to environmental, community, health and safety issues; and

Focus on government, community and social relations.

Yamana owns seven producing mines, two of which are undergoing expansion, five development stage projects and an extensive exploration portfolio in the Americas. Yamana's mining approach is to target low cost of production both in reliance on and independently of by-product credits.

The principal components of targeted production to a sustainable production level of 2.2 million ounces of gold in 2012 include the following:

Increasing sustainable gold production at the Chapada mine from a baseline of 170,000 ounces of gold in addition to copper with plant capacity increases;

Increasing production at the El Peñón mine initially to 420,000 gold equivalent ounces (GEO) and potential to achieve approximately 500,000 ounces (GEO) with modest plant capacity increases and tailings improvements;

Increasing production at the Jacobina mine to exceed 200,000 ounces of gold largely from development of new mine areas including Canavieiras and Morro do Vento;

Increasing production at the Gualcamayo property from an initial target of 200,000 ounces of gold to over 300,000 ounces of gold from growing resources at satellite and potential underground areas;

Increase production at the Minera Florida mine to approximately 120,000 ounces of gold from plant capacity increases;

Develop the Mercedes property to a production level of up to 200,000 ounces of gold per year with a target date for production of 2009;

Develop the C1 Santa Luz property to over 100,000 ounces of gold per year with a target date for a feasibility study of December 2007;

Develop the Jeronimo project to a production level of 150,000 ounces of gold per year;

Pursue an expansion at the San Andrés mine for a production level of 90,000 to 100,000 ounces of gold per year;

Improvements and enhancements at the São Francisco mine to increase production to up to 140,000 ounces of gold per year; and Continue development efforts at the São Vicente, La Pepa, Amancaya and other projects.

Yamana has always believed in a three-pronged strategy to achieve sustained growth by focusing on operational excellence and enhanced mine-site production, through exploration and through strategic acquisitions that deliver value, continued Mr. Marrone. By communicating the core elements within our strategic plan, in addition to production targets by mine-site, Yamana is clearly ready to deliver upon each key growth strategy.
