Petrobras conclude Macae Power Plant Transfer

(Rio de Janeiro, May 9, 2006). PETRÓLEO BRASILEIRO S/A - PETROBRAS, [Bovespa: PETR3/PETR4, NYSE: PBR/PBRA, Latibex: XPBR/XPBRA, BCBA: APBR/APBRA], a Brazilian international energy company, announces that the acquisition of the 928 MW gas-fired Macae power plant from El Paso Rio Claro Ltda. has been concluded for US$ 357.5 million, fully resolving all matters of dispute concerning that facility.

As part of the acquisition, Petrobras was indemnified by El Paso against certain customary liabilities, including any liability associated with federal taxes of approximately US$ 78 million for which El Paso believes it has valid defenses and for which it has challenged the Brazilian tax authorities. In this respect, El Paso and Petrobras shall also share in other refunds or tax benefits, receivables or recoveries of financial income related to the transacted assets.

It is noteworthy that, through a participation agreement, Petrobras and El Paso had previously formed a consortium where Petrobras supplied the natural gas and El Paso owned the Macae power plant. Due to several changes in the energy market, Petrobras, following specific contractual clauses, sought rescission of the participation agreement and reimbursement of prior contingency payments that it had made by filing for international arbitration as well as filing a lawsuit in Brazilian courts.

Although an provisory arbitration award was issued in the proceeding, Petrobras and El Paso entered into an agreement in March 2006 that provides for the settlement of this matter and the sale of the entities that own interest in the Macae power plant. Pursuant to that agreement, the participation agreement has been terminated and El Paso completed the sale of its interest in the facility to Petrobras in May 2006 for US$ 357.5 million, thereby fully resolving the matters in dispute.
