SMITH & NEPHEW ACQUIRES WOUND
DEBRIDER FROM HYDROCISION INC

23 January 2004

London, England and Andover, Massachusetts, January 23, 2004 - Smith & Nephew plc (LSE:SN, NYSE:SNN) today announced that its Advanced Wound Management business has acquired the VERSAJET surgical debridement product from HydroCision Inc to add to its growing range of advanced wound bed preparation products.

VERSAJET is a specialised fluid jet instrument enabling surgeons to easily remove damaged tissue and contaminants from surgical, traumatic and chronic wounds in a precise and safe manner. Approved for use in the United States, Canada and the European Union, VERSAJET was launched in 2003.

Smith & Nephew will acquire the VERSAJET product line for $5m, with additional consideration payable upon reaching future development and sales milestones. Smith & Nephew expects 2004 sales of the product to reach $2-3m.

"VERSAJET is an outstanding new technology that enables the clinician to remove contamination and dead or decaying tissue when preparing wounds for closure or healing," said Jim Dick, President of the Advanced Wound Management business of Smith & Nephew. "VERSAJET is easy to use and will strengthen our position in the rapidly growing wound bed preparation market."

Doug Daniels, President and CEO of HydroCision, added: "We are pleased that
